The acronym LGBTQ is frequently used to denote a diverse community of individuals who are not heterosexual, including lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, queer, intersexed, asexual, two-spirit, and questioning individuals, as well as heterosexual people who support LGBTQ individuals (known as allies).

The University of Arizona is committed to fostering a safe, inclusive, and open environment for all students. We welcome individuals of all gender identities and sexual orientations. If you identify as LGBTQ or you are questioning your sexuality or gender identity, please know that you are not alone! There is a strong LGBTQ community here on campus.

There are many resources available to you on campus, in the local Tucson community, and nationally. Most of these resources are free and confidential. To learn more about these resources, please review this brochure. Additional info is available at http://global.arizona.edu/international-students. Click on the Student Resource Manual tab and then LGBTQ Resources.

Attitudes about sexual orientation and gender expression in the US may differ from what you have experienced in your home country. Some countries are accepting, whereas others may have harsher views and subsequent laws. Review the Student Resource Manual to learn about these differences & special things to consider as an int’l LGBTQ student.
